LEAVE NO TRACE EDUCATIONAL MATERIALS

The goal of the Leave No Trace program is to promote a consistent, unified message about minimum impact environmental practices on natural lands. The use of Leave No Trace information to target specific activities, regions, and audiences is encouraged within the context of current Leave No Trace programs and materials. Use of the Leave No Trace logo is limited to partner organizations, associated federal land management agencies, and those given express permission. Because the Leave No Trace Center for Outdoor Ethics understands the need for international organizations and individuals to have Leave No Trace educational materials in their native language, the following translation guidelines have been developed to guide partner organization through this process:

1. Partner organizations and individuals are authorized to translate information located on the Leave No Trace website, including the North American Skills and Ethics booklet which is the "core text" of the Leave No Trace program. For translation of other educational materials or other Skills and Ethics booklets, please contact the Center.
2. Keep translations as close to the original English wording as possible.
3. If it is necessary to make significant changes to meet local needs or target specific resource management or protection issues, please contact the Center to discuss why the changes are necessary before making them (See additional guidelines below).
4. Cite existing copyrights on the information, but be sure to include the following "Translated by...", listing all those who worked on the translation.
5. Include our website address as <www.lnt.org>
6. Diligent measures must be taken to ensure accuracy of the translation, and outside review is strongly encouraged.
7. Translated information is not to be sold.
8. The logo may be translated.
9. Once materials have been translated, both an electronic version and a hard copy must be submitted to the Center for Outdoor Ethics.
